Horror/Thriller

Author of Novel: James Wosochlo Jr.

Screenplay By: Joaquin Alejandro

Based on true events, America's first cunning and methodical serial killer lives a thrilling life of deception as he is determined to live in a two-room tavern, preying upon lonely travelers in the wilderness of the Appalachian Mountains

BRIEF SYNOPSIS

This is an amazing tale based on true events that take place in 1850 and ends in 1889 with a death bed confession exposing a lifetime of murders by Mathias Schaumboch. Rumors begin to mount from local towns in the valleys below as Mathias begins to suffer the onset of dementia. There are tales of those who go missing and even events of cannibalism. Such rumors haunt Mathias his entire life and are buried with him after his death. However, these rumors come true when the next owners of this tavern find all four water wells full of human skulls and bones. This is a true horror thriller that will rewrite history on who was America's first serial killer. Some see the murders as unjust, some see the murders as justified in such a lawless land to those travelers that were criminals running from the law themselves.
